

The background of the poster is a photograph of the interior of a church. The ceiling is high and features several large, ornate paintings in oval frames, depicting religious scenes. The walls are light-colored with decorative moldings. In the center, a large organ with multiple sections and a central window is visible. The pews are made of wood and are arranged in rows. In the foreground, a young child with blonde hair, wearing a light-colored hoodie, is sitting on a bench and playing the organ. The child is smiling and looking towards the camera. A semi-transparent blue rectangle is overlaid on the middle of the image, containing the main text.
